When the first of the year comes it must be remembered that many millions will be required to meet the unprecedented interests and dividend disbursements. Arrangements for these now are being made, so that if money rates go up no one need be particularly surprised.

It was expected that some action in Greene Copper would again furnish a sensation, but the lack of anything approaching excitement is shown by the fact that the total sales were but 118 shares and the price remained exactly the same as the close of yesterday. As nothing could be done in Greene the brokers turned their attention to Mitchell Mining and bought 800 shares on options at 5½. This is a fraction better than the cash prices, but can hardly be said to be any advance in price.
